Global referrals aren't required for Michigan State University employee health plan

As a reminder, the Michigan State University employee health plan doesn't require global referrals to process and pay claims for services performed at the in-network or out-of-network benefit level.

The Michigan State University employee health plan is a Blue Care Network health plan for employees of Michigan State University. This plan covers MSU employees who don't have Medicare as their primary coverage.

Note: While this plan doesn't require global referrals, some services require prior authorization regardless of whether they're performed at the in-network or out-of-network benefit level.
